

Huddlestock expands consulting engagement with leading Danish financial institution

Huddlestock Fintech AS ("Huddlestock" or the "Company"), a leading investment technology and services provider, has through its consulting business, Visigon, expanded its existing relationship with a large Danish bank and mortgage institution.

"This extension highlights our ability to grow organically within existing client relationships and confirms the relevance of our expertise as financial institutions modernise their data and system landscapes. It also demonstrates the value we deliver over time, as clients trust us with broader and more business-critical parts of their operations," says Leif Arnold Thomas, CEO of Huddlestock. Visigon already has a strong footprint within the organisation, acting as advisor and system integrator in the implementation of a new financial software platform covering finance and operations. As part of this expanded engagement, Visigon will now also take on responsibility for the organisational implementation of a new financial data warehouse.

On track delivering on 2028 targets

Visigon connects finance and technology in the rapidly evolving capital markets and treasury landscape, offering vendor solutions, advisory services, and bespoke software development. Through a highly personalised approach, the group combines deep industry expertise with solutions tailored to each client's specific needs and strategic ambitions.

Huddlestock has previously communicated long-term targets for its Consulting division of NOK 100 million in revenue and a 20% EBITDA margin by 2028. The Company prioritises continued upselling within established client relationships and this effort will be an important driver in achieving these targets.
